PROPOSAL FOR A SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON CAMPAIGN

The resolution was defeated by a vote of 46 to 3 after a debate that lasted until after midnight.

During the debate on the resolution the action of President Wilson in suggesting the names of the officers of the new committee was freely discussed, and National Committeeman E. H. Moore of Ohio, who presented the rese lution, declared that the President should not have the power to impose his will upon the committee and that "I do not want to put it in the power of the republicans and progressives and any man to create a presidential Representative Carter Glass of Virginia, secretary; W. W. Marsh of Iowa, treasurer; John I. Martin of Missouri, sergeant-at-arms.

There had been reports for several days that some national committeemen were opposed to the idea that President Wilson name the officers of the committee. After several contests had been heard the committee took up the question of permanent organization, and Mr. Moore offered a resolution that had been given him by National Committeeman Clark Howell of Georgia, who was forced by engagements to leave the city.

For a Campaign Committee.

This resolution provided in effect that a campaign committee be created to conduct the campaign until after the election, and that in accordance with the wish of the presidential nominee Vance McCormick be made its chairman, and that the national committee give its co-operation to this campaign committee. This resolution was withdrawn and one from National Committeeman John T. McGraw of West Virginia was then submitted.

The McGraw resolution provided that the democratic national committee mame its own officers, which shall be selected from its own membership, and that the committee campaign and the the few manufiles elected from its own membership, and that the committee campaign and that the committee campaign and that the committee campaign and the campaign

Mr. Moore declared that he did not feel that the President of the United States should impose upon the unwilling will of this committee a man who shall be in control of the committee. He added that he intended no affront to the nominee of the democratic convention, but he did ask that no affront be put upon the committee.

"Yes, I know you want to vote," Pittman shouted at his opponents. "You'd rather do anything else than hear the coverridden. I do not want to put it in the power of any man to create a presidential dynasty."

Vice Chairman Cummings said that he deprecated the use of such landing age at this critical period of public affairs. He added that the President made the suggestion of the committees officers as a convenience to the committeemen, and that Mr. Moore's resolution would run counter to the President's designations. Mr. Cummings asserted that if the motion were passed it would be heralded far and wide that the committee was not in harmony. Mr. Cummings said: "We should heed the President's suggestions. They are not orders or commands."

A. Mitchell Palmer, national commit-teeman of Pennsylvania, vigorously op-posed the resolution, declaring it to be revolutionary and that it made for a double-headed proposition in the con-duct of the campaign. He told the committee something of Mr. McCor-mick's activities in public life, and add-

"The President did a courteous and proper thing by communicating his suggestions to Vice Chairman Cummings of the committee. He never dictates. He never gives orders. He has ideas and convictions and he expresses them. I do not think the President would consider it an affront if you did not act on his suggestion. But the question is, does not this proposition hurt our cause?"

AFTER HARD FIGHT

Platform Makers at St. Louis Meet Determined Opposition in Convention.

WINGS OF THE PARTY QUOTE PRESIDENT WILSON IN SUPPORT OF PLANK

> 'Antis" Able to Muster 1811/2 Votes in Favor of Substi> > tute Provision.

ST. LOUIS, June 17 .- The closing sesion of the democratic national convention vesterday afternoon was enivened by a spirited fight over the uffrage plank—the only thing approaching a contest in the entire conention proceedings. By a vote of 8881/2 to 1811, the delegates adopted the plank as prepared by the committee on resolutions, and which, it was anounced, had the approval of President Wilson. As it went into the platform the suf-rage plank stands: "We favor the extension of the franchise to the women of this country, state by state, on the same terms as to the men." The woman suffrage leaders considered it a much more favorable declaration than they got from the republican convention at Chicago. They threw all their force behind it and won the support of the administration leaders, who were found fighting for them when danger threatened.

Suffrage Fight in Air.

The fight on the suffrage plank was n the air when the delegates gathered for the final session. Everybody was keyed up to it, and when at the conclusion of the reading of the platform, Martin Lomasney of Boston, a delegate, Martin Lomasney of Boston, a delegate, claimed the attention of the chair, it was thought he was opening the fight, and it was several minutes before the shouts of approval and cries of disapproval could be stilled sufficiently to hear that he wanted to put the convention on record as sympathizing with "the people of Ireland."

"Raus mit him," roared a Baltimore delegate, and the convention hall rocked with laughter.

The yeal fight broke immediately after, however, when Gov. Ferguson of Texas, who headed the minority report against the administration plank, was given thirty minutes in which to present it.

sent it.

The plank offered by the minority was:

Plank Proposed by Minority.

"The democratic party always has tood for the sovereignty of the several states in the control and regulation of sition of our party in this regard and favor the continuance of that wise provision of the federal Constitution which vests in the several states of the Union the power to prescribe the qualifica-tions of their electors."

the power to prescribe the qualifications of their electors."

Besides Gov. Ferguson, the report was signed by former Representative Bartlett of Georgia, James R. Nugent of New Jersey and Stephen B. Fleming of Fort Wayne, Ind.

The burden of Gov. Ferguson's argument was that suffrage, being purely a state's right question, the wording of the majority plank was a presumptuous recommendation to the states on how to conduct their electorates.

Anti-suffrage delegates on the floor plied the governor with questions, which brought out in the answers fresh arguments against the administration plank. When Gov. Ferguson had finished, the convention was in confusion, and the convention was in confusion, and the tone of the uproar in the delegate sec-tions was indicative of sympathy with platform and considered it essential for party victory.

"Whatever your opinions may be." he said, "we shall never be anything but a discordant and divided party unless we surrender some of our convictions to the wisdom of a majority. Here you are confronted, as one of our famous leaders said, with a condition; not a theory. The twelve suffrage states represent ninety-one votes in the electoral college. Every political party has made this declaration in some form or other. It becomes a simple question of whether you will incur the enmity of these women. There is no possibility of losing a single vote if you adopt this majority plank, because every other party has done the same.

"I ask you," he cried, "if you're going to put a resolution in here that's a lie. You can't adopt this minority report without stulifying yourselves."

Senator Walsh then explained that the President knew about the suffrage the President knew about the suffrage plank and added:
"He believes it vital to his success that it stay there. I ask you with all the fervor of my being, who is there here who is wiser or more patriotic than he?"

Thunder Drowns Speakers.

While the fight had been going on hunderstorm burst and when the row on the convention floor was at its height the storm reached its climax. The booming of the thunder, mixed with the roaring shouts on the floor and the clatter caused by the rain on the roof almost drowned out the speakers. The storm cleared just as Senator Walsh finished speaking, and the closing words of his plea for the administration plank swept a change of sentiment over the crowd as welcome to the suffragists as the wave of cool, refreshing air that poured down into refreshing air that poured down into the Collseum.

There were renewed cries of "Vote, vote," but they were not shouts for the defeat of the plank. As the clerks called the roll of states the vote toppled into the column supporting the plank as the committee had written it so fast that the defeat of the substitute was assured before the call had gone a dozen states. At the close of the roll call the whole platform as written was adopted, and after disposing of some formalities, the convention adjourned sine die at 3:11 o'clock. sine die at 3:11 o'clock.
